SOUTH END GROUNDS, BOSTON, Mass., May 3.—The Giants suffered a shut-out this afternoon in a game that was remarkably clean all the way through. The New Yorkers' goose eggs were the result of Pfeffer's pitching. At no time could the visitors get their eye on the ball, and many of the times they got down to the initial corner they were held there by the youngster's superb control. Taylor, on the other hand, was touched up quite freely and some long drives were made of him.

While John McGraw, manager-captain of the Giants, sat in the grand stand to-day at the game between his aggregation and the local outfit he grew philosophical and talked of some things about baseball and the way to win games.

"Now," said the never-tiring worker, "they thought we were roughing it a bit Tuesday, when we had to protect against some things that took place. You've got to protect once in awhile. There's nothing like being on the look-out all the time, get what belongs to you, and when that comes, why, every one is satisfied."

"There ain't a fan in the country who doesn't like just a little excitement mixed into the game. It wakes up the boys and keeps everybody in good humor. Good lively coaching is mistaken by some people for 'dirty ball,' and that's where the mistake comes in. They don't distinguish between lively work and matter-of-fact games. You can depend on the man who understands the game to appreciate effort, and it don't matter who is winning. He wants to see the team that works for the game."

The manager, with Bresnahan and McGraw, watched the game from the grandstand, all having been suspended until to-morrow for the kicking they did on Tuesday. McGraw evidently told the other members of the team to keep quiet yesterday, for there wasn't a murmur the whole way through.

First Inning.
Browne opened up with a scratch bump in front of the Giants, which O'Neill tossed down to Tenney for a first out. Then Dillon hoisted a sky-scraper which gave a warm reception on the Giants' bench. Bowerman was the third victim, going out, Pfeffer to Tenney. NO RUNS.

It looked bad for our old friend Taylor again. Bridwell, the first man up, laced a single into center without any trouble. Tenney, however, was good for nothing better than a fly, which Mertes was beneath. Dolan's hot sizzler came away from Gilbert so that Bridwell reached the middle mark. Howard took the first ball served up to him and waded it so vigorously into the middle stretch that he covered the ground to third base before Dolan could get the ball to the infield. Bridwell and Dolan had scored meantime. Brain's weak one went down to Devlin, who tossed it home to Marshall, and he nailed Howard at the plate without any trouble.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PARK, NEW YORK, May 3.—A day of rest brought the fans out early for this afternoon's struggle, and at 3 o'clock 2,000 necks strained toward the Athletic bench in the hope of seeing Babe Waddell in the leathers. For a half hour they were disappointed and had to pass the time in watching the Highlanders' club the ball in a make-believe game. Presently Babe's keeper was seen emerging from a hole in center-field fence with George Tim Hurst who will officiate as referee in all the bouts.

FAVORITES CUT LITTLE ICE AT JAMAICA TO-DAY

Halifax the Only Real Hot One to Go Over—Boweryites Moan.

BY T. O. PIPER.

(Special to The Evening World.)
JAMAICA RACE TRACK, May 3.—This was a bad day for favorites, four of them being beaten in a row. Aero, a two-year-old colt, took the fifth, and the sixth went to Halifax, at odds on. The bookies had a merry time of it. "Teddy" Clark, the crack Pacific Coast jockey, was halted before the Stewards after the second race in which he had the leg up on the fast mare Fronta. The investigation which followed resulted in referring the case. Fronta is owned by C. T. Henshall, one of the best known owners of the Coast, and declared to be a horseman having at heart the best interest of the turf. He is closely related in turf transactions with Paul and Roy Ramey, who have recently invented thousands in thoroughbred, and are millionaires. Before the race Fronta ran away a mile and an eighth. In the meantime Mr. Henshall had bet heavily on the mare. During the race she ran prominently for three-quarters.

Rosenbom will not start in the Kings County Handicap Saturday in all probability. The question will finally be decided after the races to-day following a conference between Owner "Davy" Johnson and Trainer Frank Weir. The latter stated to a reporter for The Evening World to-day that the great horse, while answering every requirement asked of him, did not quite fill expectations, and that a rest over Saturday might enable him to be a starter in the Montague Stakes Tuesday.

Griffin Wins Opening Purse.

The sport of the day was initiated by a victory for "Halcyon Tommy" Griffin's black colt Clements, a second choice in the betting. Jockey Baird was alert throughout and rode strictly to orders. He went into the lead at the first jump and showed the way merrily to the favorite Black Mate, making it comparatively a two-horse race. Clements won easily with the boy sitting easy. Black Mate was just as easy over Round Dance, the others doing their best.

The Bowery Misses Another.

"Big Tim's" Consuelo II, ridden by Miller, proved the goods in the second. The filly, however, was not played to the full extent by the Bowery, and again turf history for the week and a half, and that a rest over Saturday might enable him to be a starter in the Montague Stakes Tuesday.

DUKE GRANTED A DIVORCE; WIFE WITHDRAWS HER SUIT

Tobacco Trust's Head Has Fully Proven Charges, Says Vice-Chancellor—Huntton Must Pay Cost of Case.

James B. Duke, millionaire head of the Tobacco Trust, will get his divorce. Vice-Chancellor Pitney after the close of the evidence to-day in Newark announced that he would recommend that the decree asked for be granted. Neither Mrs. Duke nor the co-respondent, Frank Huntton, aged clubman and mineral water agent, have been in court since the opening day, and the defense was of the weakest sort, ending with the introduction of the divorce decree secured by Mrs. Duke's first husband, William E. McCredy. This divorce, secured in New York in 1892 on statutory grounds, was brought into the case to prove "that Mr. Duke knew the frail moral disposition of his wife when he married her."

There was also a statement that Mr. Duke had condoned his wife's alleged offense, that he had secured evidence by connivance.

Knew Frail Disposition.

Counsel for the defense offered a letter dated Aug. 25, 1892, admittedly signed by Mr. Duke and written to Mrs. William E. McCredy. This was the name of Mrs. Duke at that time. Her late husband divorced her in New York on statutory grounds. The defense also offered a copy of the decree of divorce secured by McCredy with the object of showing that Mr. Duke, before his marriage, knew of the frail moral disposition of the woman he made his wife in 1904.

"Ah I can see in this," said the Court, "is an admission on the part of Mrs. Duke that she was divorced from a former husband by her own fault. There has been nothing to show that Mr. Duke had anything to do with that divorce."

The plaintiff's lawyers objected on the ground of immateriality to the introduction of the 1892 letter and the copy of the decree, as the latter was not a complete record. "Do you claim that Mr. Duke was a co-respondent in the McCredy case?" asked the Court.

"We do not. We do not even make the intimation," replied Mr. Kalsch, of Mrs. Duke's counsel. Vice-Chancellor Pitney decided to admit the 1892 letter, saying it had no effect on the case. Mr. Kalsch read the letter, which was one of sympathy for the woman in some trouble of which she had written to Mr. Duke. The tone of the letter was one of esteem. At the time it was written McCredy had already sued for divorce.

The defense asked for adjournment which was refused.

Plead Lost Witness.

"A material witness," explained Lawyer Parker, "Vera Abramson, is missing and we have not been able to secure her attendance. Without it we cannot sustain the charges made against the petitioner in our cross bill. This woman was employed as a maid
